BULLETIN

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—A new all time record of voting in Ohio was virtually certain today as an unprecedented wave of voting swept the state from boundary to boundary.

Magnetized by the stirring presidential campaign, heated battles on state and county slates of offices and to a great extent by economic conditions voters turned out in unparalled numbers.

With 1,616 votes cast at 12:30 p. m. today, it was safely predicted that the vote of 1928—the last presidential election—would be surpassed before the polls closed at 6:30 p. m. Four years ago the number at 1 p. m. was 1,571. Taking into consideration that the survey made of the city by The Herald today was 30 minutes earlier than four years ago and the number 55 higher indicated a record count.

The polls opened at 6:30 p. m. and precinct-workers reported a steady flow of electors in and out of the precincts—at several places it was necessary for voters to wait until a booth was empty.

PRECINCT VOTE

The vote by precincts at noon was:

First ward, west; 164, with Charles Thomas the first voter;

First ward, north; 185, with Mrs. Ethel Reichelderfer, the first voter;

First ward, east; 267, the highest in the city, with Harvey Dreisbach, casting his ballot first.

Second ward, east; 163 votes, with James W. Edgington, first

Third ward, south; 133 votes, with Cecil Niles, first.

Weather for the election was perfect and several precincts in rural sections and in Ashville, New Holland and Williamsport, reported record counts at 1 p. m. giving every indication that a new mark in the county would be set before sundown.

An even 200 absent voters' ballots have been distributed to the various precincts by Harry E. Weill, clerk of the board of elections. A number of other absent and disabled voters' tried to cast ballots Monday but were too late, the deadline having been passed.

PARTIES PLANNED

Several election parties are planned in the city this evening.

B. P. O. Elks lodge will have a party to which ladies are invited. Cards will be played in the social rooms while returns are awaited. A system of wires has been arranged by Ferd M. Pickens, exalted ruler, with the aid of several local firms, and complete returns as soon as available will be announced in the club rooms.

The Fraternal Order of Eagles also is planning an election party and both the Grand and the Clifton Theatres will flash election news as it is received.

The Herald office will be open all night receiving returns from national, state and county elections. Any person seeking information should confine their tele-

Record Vote Expected Throughout Ohio

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8 —With National Guardsmen ready to step in if necessary and supervise the balloting in seven precincts of Pike-co—scene of three murders at three recent election—Ohio went to the polls today to cast what was expected to be one of the heaviest votes in the history of the state for national, state, district and county officials.

Upwards of 2,700,000 Ohions will cast ballots between 6 30 a. m. and 6:30 p. m., election experts estimated. In 1928, during the Hoover landslide, a total of 2,600,-551 votes were cast.

DECIDE CONVENTION

In addition to determining whether Ohio's 26 electoral votes shall be given to President Hoover or to Governor Roosevelt of New York and electing a complete slate of national, state and county offices, the voters will decide whether a state constitutional convention shall be called.

With the exception of the reputed sore spot in Pike-co, few if any disturbances were expected to mar the state's election. Every precaution was taken by election officials to have the balloting in the 8,700-odd precincts in the state conducted peacefully. Close check was kept to prevent any irregul-

Confusion Reigns After Collision

Four Automobiles Figure in Accident on W. Main-St Monday Afternoon; Fisticuffs Follow Argument Between Two Men.

Despite the fact that no one was injured in an accident involving four automobiles about 4:15 p. m. Monday, W. Main-st was crowded by spectators who watched and heard arguments following the collision.

The principals in the case were; Frank A. Marion, N. Scioto-st, city councilman;

John Walters, 869 Bryden-rd, Columbus, and E. A. Holton of Groveport, in one automobile;

And the Ford coupe belonging to Mrs. Ed Murphy of Circleville R. F. D. 7.

Witnesses report the accident happened in this manner; the Dodge coupe driven by Walters and carrying Holton, was going east on Main-st and the sedan driven by Marion was following the Walters car. Smith was going west on Main-st in his Ford sedan. Marion started to pass Walters' car and Mrs. Murphy, or whoever was driving her car, started to back from the curbing in front of the Fred Fissell store. Mr. Walters swerved his car to the left to avoid striking the Ford backing from the curb and the left side of his car and the right side of Marion's collided. Marion's car then crashed against the left front end of the Smith car, breaking a wheel, and smashing the fender.

Two women in the Murphy car pulled back against the curbing. Walters drove his car into the curbing and Marion stopped his in the street. Smith was unable to move his car and it was removed by the Reliable Motor Co. wrecker.

Arguments between Mr. Marion and Mr. Holton ensued and as a result fisticuffs followed. The men were separated and went on their way after considerable confusion.

FEAR SHIPS IN DISTRESS

Tropical Hurricane Continues To Cause Havoc; Many Ships Missing.

COLON, Panama, Nov 8.—With four steamships unreported and two others known to be in distress the tropical hurricane which swept up from Jamaica continued to ravage the Caribbean area today.

Grave fears were felt for passengers and crew aboard the British freighter Phemius, bound for Manila and Hongkong, unlocated since it sent out distress signals more than 48 hours ago.

A new S. O. S. call was received this morning from the Quaker line freighter, San Simeon, drifting without a propellor off the coast of Nicaragua.

Some hours earlier the steamship Tela, of the United Fruit line radioed that it was standing by the San Simeon. Upon receipt of the new distress call the United States navy tug Favorite out of Cristobal altered its course to go to the San Simeon's aid. The "Favorite" was only an hour's steaming distance away.

Meanwhile some apprehension was felt over lack of news from the steamer, Velma Lykes, which was due here on Nov. 5 from Houston, Texas; the British freighter, Pearl Moore due on Nov 1; the United States army transport K T Ludington, due from New York on the fifth, and the United Fruit liner, Hobro Jensen, reported in distress in the storm area.

The tug Killerig and the steamship, Anguani, which went to the aid of the Phemius also remained out of contact with shore points

PRES. HOOVER'S TRAIN IS HELD

Secret Service Men Probe Report of Attack On Guard At Railroad.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8. — Secret service, railroad special officers and county and local authorities in Nevada today joined hands in an investigation of an alleged attack upon a railroad guard at an isolated point shortly before the special train bearing President Hoover westward passed over an overhead bridge.

Conflicting reports were sifted by officials who declared that due to the isolated area in which the incident took place, they had been able to gain only meager details.

TRAIN DELAYED

According to reports to Southern Pacific headquarters here and statements of special agents in Reno, P. E. Fish, a guard, at a bridge just west of Palisade, a little community of thirty houses, 22 miles west of Elko, flagged down the pilot train preceding the presidential special, and reported the attack.

Fish told officials he had heard a noise on the Western Pacific tracks which cross over the southern Pacific tracks and on investigating found two men, one white and one negro. He said they carried six sticks of dynamite and that they fled after he scuffled with them.

First reports were to the effect Fish had been shot but A. A. Lowe, Southern Pacific transportation inspector, declared that Fish's only injuries were bruises sustained when he slipped down the embankment from the overhead to flag the pilot train

Sheriff H. E. Harris of Elko and Constable Bearing of Carlin took charge of the local investigation. They said they had been unable to find any trace of the two men due to darkness but would conduct a thorough search after dawn.

Only Two Republicans, Ingalls and Marshall, Get High School Votes

SETTING IS REAL

Roosevelt Margin Over Hoover Is 15

If students of Circleville high school know what they are doing there will be only two Republicans chosen in today's nation-wide election. They will be David S. Ingalls for Governor over Gov. George White by three votes, and Carrington T. Marshall for Chief Justice of the Ohio Supreme court over Carl V. Weygandt. Marshall is found on the non-partisan ticket so can hardly be classed as a Republican.

In a setting as near like an actual election as possible 490 students cast ballots. Voting booths were erected and judges and clerks were named by Principal E. I. Gephart to act just as they would in an actual election. Politics of the students were even used to decide who should be clerks and judges.

QUESTION ASKED

The correct answer to one question was necessary before students were able to cast ballots; that was,

RIFE IS SPEAKER

S. T. Rife, social civics teacher of the high school, and chairman of the Pickaway-co board of elections, delivered an excellent talk on "Elections and Voting" at the Kiwanis club Monday evening.

Mrs. Roosevelt Continues Work

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.— "And today is election day," said Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

She smiled into the eager little faces above the oak desk-tops, retaining that air of composure and intellectual calm which is so characteristic of the wife of the Democratic candidate for president.

But she was not speaking as a candidate's wife. She was Mrs. Roosevelt, teacher of current events and history at the Todhunter's school on the fashionable east side.

Even the tumultous emotions of this day upon which her husband may be made the highest officer of the United States failed to shake her out of her impersonal, straightforward school teachers' mein. Failed, too, to make her change her daily routine—as stringent as that of any factory worker or business woman — even by the omission of one duty.

Governors of 34 States to be Named Along With Other Offices

ENTEREST IS HIGH

Confidence Expressed By Both Sides

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. — The voice of the orator was stilled in the land today as some 40,000,000 people went to the polls to determine the political destiny of the nation for the next four years.

By their votes today, this gigantic jury will decide whether Herbert Hoover or Franklin D. Roosevelt will be president of the United States in the critical four years ahead, whether Congress is to be Republican or Democratic, the governorships of 34 states, and the occupancy of thousands of minor offices throughout the length and breadth of the land.

The voting began early this morning, with the interest of the country—and of the world—at high pitch. Probably no campaign has been harder fought. Certainly no decision has been awaited with greater public interest.

CAMPAIGN ENDS

The campaign ended on the same note as it began, with President Hoover pleading for a vote of confidence, and warning that disaster may be the lot of the country if there is a change in the policies that have governed the country during the critical period of the depression, and Gov. Roosevelt calling for "a new deal" in the direction of national affairs.

"There is a great divergence in philosophy of government between the parties which may effect events over a generation," said Mr. Hoover in his final appeal to the country, broadcast dramatically from his special train in the desert country of the far west.

ON SAME PLATFORM

From the same platform which has been the wind-up of all his campaigns for public office over a stretch of twenty years, Gov.

VOTES FOR SENATOR, GOVERNOR CLOSE

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—An unusually close vote was being cast in Ohio today in the embittered senatorial and gubernatorial contests, in the opinion of election experts.

The swelling tide of Republican sentiment in the last few weeks, coupled with the fierceness of the Republicans attack, has made David S. Ingalls, Republican nominee for governor, a most formidable opponent of Governor George White, the Democratic incumbent who is seeking reelection, it is generally admitted.

With White and Ingalls staging what appears to be a neck-and-neck race, the contest for U. S. senator between U. S. Senator Robert J. Bulkley, Democrat, and Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, Republican, has established a new high in Ohio for bitterness and indulgence for personalities.

NEED ROOSEVELT

If Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, should sweep Ohio he will carry White, Bulkley and the rest of the state ticket along with him in a Democratic triumph on every front according to political analysts.

But if he does not win—the state fight will be a toss-up.

Ohioans going to the polls today were doubtless somewhat swayed by the charges of "mud-slinging" which have been made mutually again and again in both contests.

Typical of the rancor in the governorship race, Ingalls has repeatedly challenged the truth of White's claims to economical administration of state government, calling the governor's picture of economy "a mirage," and offering to go much farther to save taxes than White has gone.

A series of spectacular prohibition debates between Bulkley and Bettman turned out to be an example of parliamentary roughhouse never before equalled in Ohio.

The state's wet and dry voters disregarded prohibition as an issue in the senatorial and gubernatorial contests today, political observers believed.

BOTH ARE WET

Despite the bitterness aroused between Bulkley and Bettman over the liquor question, both were declared "foo wet" to get the Anti-Saloon league endorsment. Bulkley, as a pioneer repealist, won the state's biggest Democratic majority as a wet two years ago.

In one of his most sensational drive for the wet vote, Bettman charged Bulkley with "running out" on a beer vote in the senate, accusing him of "shirking" his duty to the voters.

Further reason for a close race between Bulkley and Bettman, the soldier vote was expected to be badly split.

One of the bitter chapters between the two was a repeated call by Bulkley for Bettman to make a statement of his stand on the soldiers' bonus question. Bettman, as a former state commander of the American Legion, was somewhat embarrassed by this, but he came out outspokenly against payment "at this time."

The straw votes in Ohio have shown a heavy leaning toward the reelection of Bulkley. Bettman, however, has won some new popularity with his unswerving loyalty to President Hoover, especially during the revival of Hoover interest in the late stages of the campaign, and upon the Hoover-Roosevelt outcome hinges the Bettman-Bulkley outcome.

WAR VETERANS, SERVICE MEN GO TO RED CROSS FOR AID

War service is defined by a national offical as that division of the American Red Cross which "assists disabled veterans to obtain the benefits due them from the Government; serves in many helpful ways during their hospitalization; affords relief and service to their families during the adjudication of their claims, provides friendly service and relief in distress for the men of the army, navy and marine corps."

Economic distress, together with recent legislation, has multiplied the calls upon War Service. Emergency relief has held first importance in the department's program.

Last year camp, hospital and liaison workers gave assistance to 83,760 ex-service men or their families, and 30,009 service men or their families.

FIGURES QUOTED

In the same 12 months, 397,591 ex-service men or families and 9,782 service men or families were assisted by Red Cross chapters.

Red Cross liaison service is provided in each of the 54 Veterans Administration offices to assist Chapters in the persecution of claims of veterans for Government benefits.

Sometimes, it is revealed, from two to 10 years have been devoted to the successful persecution of a claim before the Government. All sources of needed information had to be carefully combed. Frequently as many as half a dozen Red Cross chapters were involved in the task, due to a veteran's traveling about the country.

There is the typical case of the man not compensable, who was admitted to a Government hospital. The Red Cross looked after the family at home, even to the extent of supplying funds for its entire budget.

AT ALL HOSPITALS

At all army and navy stations and hospitals are either full-time or itinerant Red Cross field directors. Their assignment is to meet the social and economic problems of the men in active service. When requested by proper authorities, reports on home conditions are secured in connection with applications by service men for discharge on grounds of dependency. A man receives a telegram saying that a member of his family is dying; the matter is verified and appropriate action recommended by the Red Cross to the military or naval authorities. Occasionally the Red Cross provides travel expenses to enable a service man to report back to his station at the expiration of his furlough.

Red Cross social service in army and navy hospitals enable physicians to arrive at more accurate diagnoses in mental cases by supply them with complete medical-social histories showing the development of the patients since childhood. It also affords peace of mind by removing home worries. Doctors praise Red Cross for thus expediting recovery.

War Service has been carried on ever since the World War, by reason of Red Cross membership support and the cooperation of the United States Government. Roll call occurs this year, as usual, between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving, Nov. 11 to 24. Part of the membership dues will be used to enable this work to continue.

Roosevelt broadcast a brief final appeal for support.

"To be the means," he said, "through which the ideals and hopes of the American people may find a greater realization calls for the best in any man I seek to be only the humble emblem of this restoration."

Thousands of miles separated the Republican and Democratic candidates as they spoke their last words. Figuratively, they were thousands of miles apart in their political philosophy, too.

The great verdict of the electorate should be available by midnight—or before. If the Democratic expectations of a landslide victory are realized, it will be considerably before. If the election is close, it may be tomorrow before the country can be certain of the outcome.

There was no apparent diminishing of the confidence expressed by both sides as the case went to the jury.

From Republican headquarters in Chicago, National Chairman Everett Sanders declared: "Victory is in the air. We are going to win—decisively."

From Democratic headquarters in New York, national chairman "Jim" Farley asserted: "The vote by which Roosevelt and Garner will be elected will surpass our fondest hopes and our most optimistic predictions."

Popular opinion tends more to support the Democratic forecast than the Republican.

Almost every surface indication, every political weather vane, every straw by which politicians are want to guage the temper of the country, points to Democratic victory. The betting odds in New York are 4 to 1 and 5 to 1 that Gov. Roosevelt will be elected.

Orders to hold two squads of National Guardsmen to "stand by" for patrol duty were issued by Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson following reports to Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown that precinct officials had refused to serve without protection and had expressed fears of violence at the voting booths.

Three previous elections in Pike-co have been marked by disorders resulting in three murders, Brown was told.

QUIET THIS MORNING

Voting in the area was reported to be proceeding quietly this morning, however, and Adjutant General Henderson said he was confident it would not be necessary to order troops into the territory.

Although rain was threatened in the state, election officials insisted that a record-breaking vote would be turned in. Early reports indicated the truth of the predictions. From various voting sections of the state it was reported that interest was at a high pitch and that the voting, starting slow, was picking up rapidly.

The state campaign was brought to a close last night with the candidates taking last-minute pokes at their opponents. Both Governor George White, Democratic incumbent, and David S. Ingalls, his Republican opponent wound up their campaigns in Cleveland.

Champion Grave Dweller Living

ANNEAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 8.—Robert Jones, of Richmond, Va., is the champion grave dweller of the universe today, having remained buried alive for 38 days.

"If he doesn't get pneumonia in the next 48 hours, he will live," said Dr. George F. Basil, who examined the new champ at Emergency hospital.

Jones weighed 139 pounds when he entered his coffin. His weight today is 110. He was fed, and breathed through tubes.

The first thing he requested upon coming to the surface was a shave.

HOOVER POORHOUSE' BACKING ROOSEVELT

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, Nov. 8.—"Hoover's poorhouse unanimously wishes you success."

This was the text of a cable dispatched to Governor Roosevelt today by Democrats of the Virgin islands.

Sentiment throughout the island as an "effective poor-overwhelmingly Democratic.

Surprises—Thrills—Melodrama in Long Island Murder Trial

VICTOR DOWNS — MRS MITZIE DOWNS IN PRISON CELL

More dramatic, more swiftly-moving and thrill-packed than any movie ever produced was the recent trial of Victor Downs, former policeman, at Riverhead, L. I., on a charge of having murdered Frank Tuthill, aged chiropodist and reputed miser, of Quogue. Tuthill's body was found in his automobile near Hampton Bays, two weeks after he had disappeared from his home. He had been shot to death and robbed of $3,000 he is said to have had in his possession when he disappeared. An investigation resulted in the arrest of Downs, following whose indictment the police announced that a statement accusing Downs of the killing had been obtained from Mrs. Mitzi Downs, the accused man's wife. The trial opened with Mrs. Downs in the role of State's star witness, but to the amazement of the prosecution its ace repudiated the alleged confession on the witness stand. Not only that but Mrs. Downs accused Prosecutor L. Barron Hill of "tricking" her into signing a lying statement. As the "confession" was the prosecution's trump card, there was nothing for the chagrined attorney to do but ask a dismissal of the case through lack of evidence. So Downs was freed. But he was immediately rearrested and jointly—with his wife—charged with first degree murder. Again he was freed when it was pointed out that such a course constituted a case of "double jeopardy." Freed once more, he was arrested and charged with the theft of the $3,000 Tuthill was said to have had when he vanished, and Mrs. Downs was formally charged with the actual slaying of the corn doctor. Now Downs is out on bail, while his wife awaits trial in a prison cell—a unique situation where the "star witness" has taken the leading role.

THE HUNTER HUNTED!

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the famous artist, R. Atkinson Fox . . . inspired by the battle between an enraged bull buffalo and the savage Indian hunters whose lances roused the beast to furious charge. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

Copr. 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

The Farmward Trend

AMERICA is going back to the farm. High factory wages and larger opportunities lured it away from the acres and old homestead during the prosperity era, and low wages, or no wages at all, are sending the farm boys, both young and old, back to the corn rows, wheat fields and cotton patches.

The federal department of agriculture estimates that the end of 1932 will find 32,000,000 people, or about one-fourth of the country's entire population back on the farm. That figure takes on new significance when it is realized that it is only 77,000 below the peak year of 1910.

Here are more tenants for idle farms, cheap farm labor, new consumers of farm products at the source of production and relief for city welfare agencies. Back to the soil, for many of them means the difference between privation and three square meals a day.

Industrial recovery will again reverse the direction of the migration between city and farm, luring farm boys and girls to the city, coverting tenant farmers into city workers and again evacuating the least fertile acres. Which is well, for the country has too many food producers and not enough food consumers.

It is this ability to shift its surplus labor into localities where labor shortages exist which has made unemployment virtually unknown in the United States in normal times. On short notice the country has been known to transplant hundreds of thousands of workers hundred of miles from their homes.

Hindrance to Recovery

IF the present anti-trust laws are not antiquated, they at least form a complicated patchwork which requires simplification and adaptation to modern conditions. It is certainly illogical and contary to public interest that producers of coal, cooper, oil and other natural resources cannot agree to restrict overproduction and waste without the danger of running foul of these laws.

It might be advisable for congress, at least once in a 40- year period, to review the workings of statutes like the Sherman anti-trust act, which bears so vitally upon the problems of capital and labor.

No one can expect such a complicated question as the regulation of trusts and monopolies to be fully reconsidered at the coming short session of congress, but at the next long session definite action is imperative. Upon what congress does depends the future of several large industries and the wages of thousands of workers.

In addition to the Sherman act, which was passed 42 years ago, under conditions very different from those which now exist, there is another whole series of antitrust laws of more recent origin, which, far from clearing up the situation, seem to have complicated it further. As a whole they have served more to prevent conservation than to prevent monopolistic trusts

Has congress so little wit that it cannot find a happy medium between wasteful and ruinous competition on the one hand, and laws which choke efforts toward sane cooperation on the other hand?

Great Individualism

"OUR present civilization is perplexed because it is basing its faith upon machines and mass production and at the same time it is paradoxically trying to emphasize individualism."

Thus did a speaker before a learned society state a situation which has been apparent to thoughtful people since the beginning of the present century. And while they have been searching their minds for the answer society seems to have been slowly working out its own solution

Prior to the machine age, when each home produced virtually everything it consumed, there was plenty of rugged individualism exhibited in the business of making a living, and unlimited opportunity for developing one's individualism after working hours

Mass production and the machine have combined to reverse this situation. Individualism is banished from the factory, but counteracting this unfortunate development is the creation of new opportunities for individual expression during the increasing leisure hours

If industrial standardization destroys individual initiative and enterprise it will be the fault of the human mind rather than the fault of the machine. But it is more likely to encourage than to smother individualism.

HEART STRINGS

By EDWINA L. MACDONALD

SYNOPSIS

Young and beautiful Patricia Braithwait adored her father so much that she was willing to sacrifice love and happiness to insure his future independence by marrying middle-aged Harvey Blaine for his wealth. It was Aunt Pamela who suggested that Pat marry wealth, warning that "the glamour of love wears off". Pamela spoke from experience; her own marriage to handsome Jimmie Warren, a young lawyer, was becoming dull. Jimmie, furious at Pat's engagement, awakens to the realization that he, himself, cares for her. Pat, with youth's optimism, hopes in vain that the young camper whom she only knows as "Jack", and saw only once, will rescue her from Blaine. Jimmie finds her in the garden, sobbing. He takes her in his arms and, in despair and hungry for love, she permits him to kiss her. Next day Pat breaks her engagement. Pamela is suspicious when immediately following Pat's broken engagement, Jimmie offers to loan Pat money to study art. Pat's father declines Jimmie's offer, saying his insurance was adequate for her needs. He plans to take Pat to Paris. One minute Patricia feels she cannot leave Jimmie, and, the next, she loathes him for the kiss experience of the previous night. Then Jack arrives. Pat thinks—if he had only come yesterday, for, today, he is too late and it is Jimmie she wants. Jack explains he stayed away because her "good-bye" seemed so final. He tells her his name is Jack Laurence.

"I was half mad," she said, "or I'd have known that things didn't happen like that in real life."

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

She sat up sharply. "Jack Laurance!" No wonder he had seemed so amazingly familiar. Oh, idiot! How could she have forgotten!

"When did you get back?" she asked. "I'm surprised I hadn't read about it."

"There's never so much fuss over the solution of a mystery," he grinned. "But anyway, I'm not officially back. My father knows. I asked him not to give it to the papers. I sort of had a feeling that I must have a little while to get myself together before I had reporters descending upon me. You see, Dad's rather prominent, and he made such a staggering stir when I disappeared."

She laughed softly. In a flash had come back all those pictures of three years ago. In papers. On the screen. College pictures, most of them. A famous quarterback in action. All the yards of film resurrected to help in the world-wide search for him. He had started for Mexico to look after some oil lands belonging to his father. And had dropped off the earth. All trace of him had been lost in El Paso.

"But where on earth were you?"

"The most obvious place you can imagine. Guess."

"Were you in America all the time?"

"All the time."

"Well, if you'd been in a hospital you'd been located—or in a prison—unless a Mexican prison."

"Exactly."

"And they couldn't find you in all that time?"

"They didn't. I served almost two years on a rock quarry chained to one of the men who'd taken me."

Taken at first for ransom, his captors had been unable to claim the offered reward. In hiding from their own government they had to be wary of revealing themselves. They planned to get across the border, made several attempts, but always had to get back to cover.

Then in the general upheaval in Mexico they had been thrown into prison and he had gone with them as a matter of course. He had tried to bribe his new captors, but they were too busy with their own affairs to pay any attention to the ravings of a ragged tramp who was as brown as a native. Fortunately the rock quarries to which they were taken were close to the sea. Two years later he had escaped with his original captors, helped by their friends.

The low vibrant voice stopped. "Which reminds me," he went on, "that if a young man, or an old one should one day go about inquiring for a young lady named Pat—just Pat — Mostly Pat — he might find himself locked up by a vigilant police eager to protect people from the insane."

"You are irrepressible!" she laughed. "In books people who have had troubles make it a business and a duty to gloom about them all the time."

"And in life they make it a business and a duty to forget them as much of the time as possible. But don't try to turn me aside. I insist—your police identification, s'il vous plait."

She told him her last name, giving as her permanent address the plantation, R.F.D. "But won't you come over tomorrow and meet Dadums?"

"I think I'll move over," he chuckled. "I feel the call of civilization."

He was looking down into her face and she saw again that strange hunger. . . . The sharp sweetness of that moment in his tent flooded her memory. "It must be after one o'clock," she said hastily.

"What difference does that make, really? Don't you know I love you, Pat? I want you to be my wife." He caught her hands. "I know it seems hasty. But I feel that we have known each other very long, that you have belonged to me, I have belonged to you, always. I wanted to take you in my arms yesterday, terribly. . . . I thought you too wanted . . ."

Something clicked in her heart like the opening of a door and another man came out of the mist that had enshrouded him. Sharply. As if flashed on a screen. A big man with merry blue eyes and fair hair that had little crinkles in it. She sat up like one awakened from sleep, the lethargy that had succeeded her emotional storm wiped out.

The memory of Jimmie's arms, Jimmie's lips, flooded her being. What was she doing out here with a strange man while every nerve in her cried out in demand for another? What malicious spell had drugged her senses into a false peace? Last night when she might have been saved from the torment of awakening, this man had stayed away. Now, too late, he had come.

She covered her face with her hands. "Oh, if only you had! I did want you to—then. It was the first time in my life I'd ever wanted a man to take me in his arms and—kiss me. But you didn't, and now it's too late."

"Too late?" He forcibly drew her hands from her face, held them fast in one of his own. In the other he gently took her chin, turning the small white face toward him, his grave eyes searching.

She closed her eyes. Began talking rapidly, breathlessly lest her courage fail her. She told him all that had occurred, beginning with her cousin's talk, the urgency and haste imposed on her by Pamela, of her hideous and brief engagement, not omitting her own hope that he would rescue her. Her face burned as she told him with what care she had dressed, how she had watched the ballroom entrances, expecting every touch on her shoulder to reveal him, and of her last wild hope that, not knowing her name, he was waiting for her on the beach believing she would come out to him.

"I was half mad," she said, two big tears stealing down her cheeks, "or I'd have known that things didn't happen like that in real life."

"Oh, my darling," he murmured, catching her in his arms.

"No. No." She struggled to free herself. "I haven't finished. I didn't love you. I thought so. But I didn't. It was myself I loved. You represented a romantic escape. Oh, forgive me," she said as his arms slowly relaxed. "I can't let you be deceived. I myself was deceived. I know it now."

"How do you know?" His voice was harsh.

"Because—when you didn't come, I hid myself in the Palm park. Another man found me there, weeping. He took me in his arms. He loved me. I was desperate to be loved. He offered me rescue. And I, who hadn't loved anybody but myself and Daddy, suddenly loved another!"

Never Confuse Acidosis With "Popular" Acidity

The Former Is a Very Serious, Though Uncommon, Ailment, but Faulty Diet Is Sure to Bring on the Latter

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MANY INQUIRIES have come to me requesting information about "acidosis" and "acidity". It seems desirable to go somewhat into detail regarding those conditions which produce an excess of acid.

To the average man and woman, these two words, acidosis and acidity, mean the same thing. I often hear somebody say, "I suffer from acidosis," when in reality he means acidity. There are very few cases of real acidosis, but many cases of acidity.

First, let us consider acidity. Acidity, or "hyperacidity," as it is sometimes called, is a condition in which the stomach secretes an over-abundance of hydrochloric acid. This acid in proper quantities is normally found in the juices of the stomach. Its presence is necessary for the proper digestion of food.

A person suffering from acidity has too much hydrochloric acid in his stomach. The sufferer belches, has an acid taste in his mouth, and is subject to "bilious attacks".

The first step in the correction of this condition is care in the diet. Usually it can be traced to faulty diet and careless eating habits. Avoid excessive eating and omit those things that distress you. Food should be chewed slowly and thoroughly.

The diet should contain plenty of fresh vegetables and milk. An excess, particularly of meat, should not be eaten. Worry and emotional excitement delay the cure.

Acidosis, real acidosis, is usually a fatal condition. It may be traced to some organic disturbance of the body. It occurs in the course of serious and prolonged ailments. It may follow hemorrhage or an operation where there has been a great loss of blood. It is also encountered in severe cases of starvation. It might have attacked Gandhi had he continued his fast.

Acidosis is caused by an excessive accumulation of acids within the body. There must be a definite relationship between the amount of acids and alkaline substances in the body. This proper balance is maintained by the excretion of waste materials through the kidneys, skin, and intestines. When the body is unable to throw off these wastes, including the excess of acids, acidosis results.

Please bear in mind that acidity and acidosis are two distinct and separate ailments. Do not confuse them. As you see, you are not likely to meet acidosis, but by faults of eating you are almost sure to suffer from those symptoms which are commonly called "acidity".

The surest way to be comfortable at all times is to eat temperately. Foods must be selected with great wisdom if you have a tendency to "acid stomach".

TIGERS MUST STOP ELLISON, MARSHALL

Red and Black Squad Closes Season Friday on Hillsboro Field.

By REYNOLD GREEN

The Tigers of Circleville high school will have to do some clawing and plenty of it Friday afternoon at Hillsboro when they meet the tough and ready Cowboy eleven of that city, in their final game listed for this season.

Last week the Miller-coached aggregation gave a good Wilmington outfit one of the worst shellackings of the year when the score after the final whistle was blown amounted to 25 to 0.

Ellison, a halfback, and Marshall, fullback, will be two thorns in the Tigers' side in the coming fray, as both have all season displayed brilliant performances of line plunging and open field running."

"FELSKIN ELLISON"

Ellison is appropriately named "Felskin as he is a dangerous threat to any team with his elusive running and southpaw passing not saying anything as to his blocking ability.

In the Wilmington game, Marshall averaged 10 yards every try through the heavy Wilmington line and according to reports he is one of the hardest line plungers in Southern Ohio.

Hildebrant is touted as one of the best high school punters in the state according to the Wilmington News-Journal's report of the Wilmington game.

Rooney and Miller, two of the best Tigers linemen, will in all probability see action again Friday although they have been laid up on the shelf for a while with injuries, with these two back the Tiger line should be sufficiently strengthened to withstand the assaults of the Cowboy eleven.

BACKFIELD DOUBTFUL

Lee Cook, one of the Tiger's best blocking backs, is still on the shelf as well as George Speakman. Both participated in the Delaware game despite painful injuries to their legs. Friday's game may find them again in the lineup if only for a short time.

Mysteriously Shot

Mystery surrounds the shooting of James B. Bradley (above), Washington, D. C., newspaperman, who was found in his apartment in a critical condition. Two girls who were with Bradley and one of his room mates, Joseph K. Simmons, and a man who visited the apartment during the evening before the shooting, are being sought for questioning.

O. S. Plans Homecoming

COLUMBUS, Nov 5.—Hundreds of alumni will return this week end for Ohio State University's annual homecoming program, which starts Friday. Climax of the program is the Ohio State-Pennsylvania football game Saturday afternoon.

President G. W. Rightmire will address the fifth biennial conference of Ohio State University alumni Saturday morning. At noon they will have a luncheon in Pomerene Hall. A meeting of directors of the Ohio State University Association will be another alumni event of this week end.

MEDICS TO GATHER

The homecoming program will start with the clinic and conferences to be held Friday afternoon by the college of medicine for its alumni. At that time the bureau of medical and surgical research will open its new quarters in Kirsman Hall to the inspection of the visitors.

Friday evening's events include a dinner for the medical alumni and the homecoming dance. At the latter celebration identity of the homecoming queen will be made known for the first time.

The medical reunion program will continue Saturday morning, culminating with a luncheon at University Hospital. Alumni of the architecture courses at Ohio State will also have a reunion Saturday morning.

DANCES ARRANGED

Fraternities and sororities will have dances Saturday evening, as well as having open house throughout the week end for their guests.

A strong squad from the University of Pennsylvania comes Saturday to ring down the local 1932 gridiron curtain at 2 p. m. in Ohio Stadium. This is the first game between elevens of the two schools. The game will be broadcast over WEAO, WLW and WTAM.

DARBY-SCHOOL

Do not forget the high school play to be given this Friday night at 8 o'clock. Admission 10c and 20c. The proceeds are to be used for athletics.

Our teachers attended the teachers' meeting held at Williamsport last Saturday 100 per cent.

The P. T. A. program is being prepared for Nov 18. A good attendance is anticipated in view of the fact that a good speaker is being obtained.

The basketball schedules were drawn up at the superintendents' meeting last Saturday afternoon in the office of Supt. Bowers at Williamsport. Our season opens with Muhlenberg at Darbyville on the evening of Nov 18. We hope to annex a few more victories this season than has been our custom in the past.

There will be a Thanksgiving program on Wednesday, Nov 23 at 2 o'clock to which the public is invited. All the grades from the first to the high school, inclusive will have a part in the program.

The high school assembly program this Friday afternoon will be an Armistice Day program. Patrons are invited to attend not only this time, but any assembly program they care to see or hear during the year.

The Daily Horoscope

Tuesday, Nov. 8, 1932

Smooth and pleasant planetary vibrations are seen in the horoscope for this day according to astrology. It is a most unusually well fitted day for the election, and the seers declare exceedingly large numbers will turn out and freely cast their votes.

It is presaged, there will be more feeling and emotion than real thinking, among the voters regarding the choice of candidates in casting their ballots.

A friendly co-operative condition exists during the entire morning and it is especially favorable for all matters relative to organized effort in which partnership arrangements or group activities are involved.

Members of committee meetings for hospitals and charitable movements will find this an auspicious time to discuss important matters.

Relative to the election, according to astrology the evening vote will be practical and conservative, with the thought uppermost of securing the best business leader for President and for other important offices. It is foretold, the stars indicate, a strong tendency today for a wet vote.

Travel and especially journeys by water are predicted at this time. The evil aspects of the great chastising planet Saturn, is giving much concern to the world relative to the improvement of economics in government and industrial activities for the relief of unemployment, all over the world. Saturn leaves his own sign, Capricorn, November 20th, this month, and from this time on business conditions will gradually improve regardless of who our next President may be.

According to the seers Germany and England are still subject to controversy in government affairs, and commerce, regarding a solution to national problems related to government income and its adjustment to trade and business conditions.

Children born on this day probably will be intuitive, scientific and fond of occult and metaphysical subjects. They will live in their heads rather than in their hearts.

(Marcus Cocceius) Nerva, Roman emperor, was born on this date, in the year 35. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Dr Alice B. Stockham, 1833, author of "Lovers World." Perier-Casimir, in 1847, French statesman

COUNTY FAIRS AID BUCKEYE FARMERS

Declaring that county fairs may be made a powerful educational force in rural life, Carl W. Gay, chairman of the department of animal husbandry at the Ohio State University, pointed out this week that livestock shows at such fairs benefit exhibitors, spectators, and the livestock industry in general.

The exhibitor's interest in county fairs naturally is greater than the spectator's interest, who is present chiefly for entertainment, he asserts. However, many livestock men have received as spectators considerable help in the breeding, feeding, marketing, and showing of livestock.

Making the most of the show as far as the non-exhibitor is concerned, Gay stated, involves close attention at the ringside during the judging. Even a study of the winners later does not afford the lessons that a comparative study of the other animals in the competition does.

The most important function of the show ring to the livestock interests in general is in establishing ideals. Then too, there is quite a definite relationship between the respective county fairs and the state fair, the former serving as preliminary tests or elimination events for the state classic. The most outstanding county fair winners usually find their way to the state fair, and this experience is duplicated throughout the entire country.

Not until fair authorities take seriously the educational features of their fairs and the farmer patrons so accept them, according to Gay, will livestock farmers derive the greatest help and benefit from them.

TRAVEL BY WATER SUBJECT AT MONDAY CLUB MEETING

At Monday night's meeting of the Monday Club the division which comes under the general head of "The Romance of Landways and Waterways" was in charge of the program. Mrs. Tom Brown acted as chairman in the absence of Mrs. Fred Griner .

Miss Carrie E. Johnson reviewed "The Ohio River as a Pathway of Migration." She divided the history of this stream into three ages, the canoe, the flatboat and the steamboat. It was during the second age that we have countless stories relating to the busy scenes on this river and its tributaries, hurrying a vast nation from the East and Europe into the Middle West.

In a short period of time the population of the Ohio Basin sprang from seven hundred thousand to three and a half million persons. It was through the efforts of Dr Manassih Cutter of Boston, that it was decided to send out the first settlers to the Ohio country. General Rufus Putnam commanded this company of 48 men from Massachusettes and Connecticut. They journeyed to West Newton, Pa., where they built a fleet of flatboats. They traveled down the Ohio and stopped at the junction of the Ohio and Muskingum rivers, landing in April, 1788.

Thus was the beginning of the first permanent settlement in Ohio which was named Adelphia later changed to Marietta. General Putnam's home which he built on the old Campus Martins fort site in 1796 has been preserved and the state has within the last few years spent $115,000 on a handsome memorial building that covers the old house and the home has been restored as much as possible to its original appearance with the furnishings.

Between the many cities, towns and villages sprang up in the steamboat age, to live and thrive until the steamboat reached and passed the crest of popularity, then after the building of the railroads the steamboat trade sank to a trifle figure in comparison.

"Father Mississippi in the Early Days" was the subject of Mrs. Anna Chandler's paper. She recalled how in 1539 DeSota landed in Florida with six hundred picked men. For three years they wandered through swamps and forests fighting the natives, but never finding the gold they sought. After many encounters this army came upon a great river, the Mississippi, May 21, 1541. Many of the conquerors said this river was larger than the Danube.

The expedition of DeSota is important because it gave the Spaniards a claim by right of discovery to all the regions they visited.

The Mississippi takes its rise in various lakes in the country which was the home of the Northern Indian Nations. An American Secretary of State wrote that this river "is the Hudson, the Delaware, the Potomac, and all navigable rivers of the Atlantic States formed into one stream." In a century in which roads were nonexistent, and wheeled vehicles an object of curiosity, the river constituted a highway that shaped the course of colorization and life. The Mississippi river is wholly within the boundary of United States, from a reedy course in Minnesota to the vast sand bars of the Gulf of Mexico, a distance of 2459 miles.

Mrs. Lawrence Johnson discussed the "Influence of Steam Navigation." In the United States in the year 1787, John Fitch, a Pennsylvania farmer propelled a boat on the Delaware by steam power. Twenty years later, Robert Fulton ran the Clermont from New York to Albany and demonstrated the practical success of the steam power.

Commerce in the early days was carried on in great barges, kullboats and broadhorns. They floated and sailed on all rivers leading to the Mississippi then down this river to New Orleans. A voyage sometimes occupied nine months.

The first steamboat to leave Pittsburgh and sail down the Ohio and on down the Mississippi was the "New Orleans," leaving St. Patrick's Day 1811. In three days the boat landed at Louisville where a public dinner was given for the captain and his wife.

To make the steamboat traffic hum, boats were built that would ably carry many emigrants into the new land and take care of their produce and necessary goods. A river man was needed and this man proved to be Captain Henry Shrive He built a keel boat and placed his engines on the deck and invented a new type of engine. Every boat built since Shrive's in 1817 has been constructed along the same lines, with many improvements, but the general type has remained for the simple reason that it has proven satisfactory.

Mrs. Marion Lutz was elected to membership in the Club.

40 MEMBERS ATTEND VON BORA MEETING

Mrs. Frank Webbe, vice president, presided in the absence of the president, Miss Florence Hoffman, at the November meeting of the Von Bora Society of Trinity Lutheran church held Monday evening in the Parish house with approximately 40 members present.

During the business session it was voted that the society would have a Christmas party, the time to be announced later. Each member is to bring a ten cent gift to the party.

Mrs Mary Bowers, delegate to the Woman's Missionary Federation meeting held in October at Grace Lutheran church in Fremont, gave an interesting report.

Thankoffering boxes were brought in at last night's meeting. Miss Katherine Wefler, chairman of the Thankoffering box committee, was in charge of the program which was opened by responsive reading of the Thankoffering creed.

An interesting paper on "Use of Thankoffering Boxes" was read by Mrs. James Carpenter, in which she stressed two points, 'Why use them' and 'The good that has been accomplished through the use of them.'

A reading, "Thanksgiving" was given by Mrs. Howard Griffith and another, "Things That You Can Do For Your Society" by Mrs. James Stout. Appropriate hymns were interspersed through the program. They were "How Strong and Sweet Thy Father's Care," "Love Divine All Love Excelling" and "Something For Christ." The meeting was closed with prayer.

Refreshments were served during a social hour by the committee including Mrs. John Walters, chairman, Mrs. Fulton Cryder, Mrs. Clarence Wolf, Mrs. Mary Morris, Miss Bessie Riffle and Mrs. Lewis Carter.

At an assembly period Monday morning, S. T. Rife, social civics instructor, explained some of the details of election. As a result the number of ballots thrown out because of wrong marking was very low, compared to the number in other elections.

The 'mock' election is an excellent thing for students and school officials should be commended on their efforts to teach the pupils the proper way to study and mark ballots.

ODDS AND ENDS

Civilization seems to be a frantic search to find a substitute for some substitute.

The world doesn't really learn more about sex. It just learns more words about it.

Preparedness, yes. But a club is as good as a gun if everybody else is content with a club.

A democracy is much like a monarchy except that it pays more taxes and has more laws to obey.

Alas! Giving only until it hurts stops some people short of a dime.

CIGARET SMUGGLING

HAVANA.—Colonel Quero, who oversees the collection of the Internal Revenue taxes, declares that the Cuban tariff of 48 cents per pack on U. S. cigarets has fostered smuggling on a gigantic scale.

NEWS OF HOMES AND HOME FOLKS

VOL. 3. NO. 44. Published by STEVENSON'S Tuesday, November 8, 1932

It has been ascertained, according to a squib that we found in a daily paper, that if you live to be 70 years of age, you will have spent 23 yrs. 4 mos. in SLEEPING, 19 yrs. 8 mo. at work, 9 yrs. 6 mos playing, 6 yrs. 2 mo eating, 5 yrs. 2 mo. traveling, 4 yrs. 2 mo. on a sick bed, and it will require 2 yrs in dressing.

Since you will be SLEEPING and SICK for a total of 27 yrs. 6 mo., don't you think that your bed should be the very best that you can afford to own? How can you expect to do a good job of working, which takes some 20 years of your life, unless you give those weary bones and muscles of yours a chance to build up? You can't rest comfortably on a bed spring that sags down in the middle, nor on a mattress that is hard and lumpy. Get a DE LUXE or a PERFECTION —they will hold your body in its natural position —and place one of our Stearns & Foster inner-spring mattresses on the spring. Then you'll have SOME bed, and you'll feel like flying into your daily work and doing a good job of it. Drop in and let's talk about your sleeping problems

Hot dog! We've just added another job, modern method of cooking and baking in a country home that has already many modern apphances This home, that of Mrs. G—, is now one of the most up-to-date homes in the rural section of Ohio. It has a furnace, electric light and power, running water, and a Pyrofax gas range Her home is just as well equipped as any city home Your country home may have all conveniences—such as light and power, furnace and running water—but if you are still carrying in coal and carrying out ashes, or if you are filling oil tanks, for your cooking equipment, your home is not modern.

157 Per cent increase! That's how much our Estate Heatrola sales have exceeded those of last fall. Not bad, do you think? Of course, there's a reason for it When it's considered that it only takes $34.75 of good old-fashioned American money to have a genuine Estate Heatrola put into your home why wouldn't folks buy them? Yes, the $34.75 Heatrola has all the features that are found on the genuine Heatrola the INTENSI-FIRE AIR-DUCT, for instance—besides the arrangement to heat the floor at the base of the heater No cold feet if you use an Estate.

"She doesn't. He just gets like that."

There's a home in the south end of Roundtown that is sporting new floor coverings We'll bet a last year's bird nest that it reflects a different atmosphere with rugs of the latest patterns and colors. Yes and rug pads are used, too With the price of rugs at the lowest level in years, we think that this is a good time to re-rug.

Better look after that Heatrola purchase before King Winter moves in. Prices start as low as $34.75.
